

2008 Shizuoka Health Sciences English Program (SHEP)

Date: September 9, 2008

Place: University of Shizuoka

10:00-11:30 Poster session [Room: 13409]

13:00-14:40 Presentation [Room: 13411]

Introduction of SHEP

Yasuyuki Imai, Dean of GPS, Hirokazu Kobayashi, Dean of GNES

The novel protein Ymer regulates EGF receptors

Kyoko Tashiro, PhD student of GPS

Interaction of green tea catechins with proteins

Taiki Mori, PhD student of GNES

Novel synthetic method for preparing aromatic compounds in food

Shoichi Takayanagi, PhD student of GPS

Genes related to caloric restriction and lifestyle-related disease

Tomoko Inamori, PhD student of GNES

Interaction targeting

Takuma Kamiya, PhD student of GNES

The relationship between food and brain function

Miho Osumi, PhD student of GNES

Repeat-injection of PEG-modified liposomes induces ABC phenomenon

Hiroyuki Koide, PhD student of GPS

Anti-inflammatory effects of a novel vasoactive intestinal peptide derivative as COPD drug candidate

Shingen Misaka, PhD student of GPS

Closing remarks

Noriko Yoshimura, Director of Language and Communication Research Center